Savor the Region's Potential

Egypt is one of the world's fastest growing markets for food, stimulated by a young and developing population. Demand for food products is high and is expected to increase in the coming years. Moreover, Africa's large import-dependent market provides immense opportunities for trade and investment.

Capitalizing on the region's evidently large business potential, Food Africa, the continent's largest International Trade Exhibition specialized in the Food and Agro-industries, returns for its fifth edition from 9 to 11 December 2019, at the Egypt International Exhibitions Center (EIEC).

Egypt: The gateway to Africa's massive agro-food market

There are more than 1 billion people in the African consumer market. This is expected to increase to more than 2 billion by 2050. With 226 million people aged between 15 and 25 years, the continent also has the youngest population in the world. Also, African countries spend between $30bn and $50bn annually on imports. This represents enormous potential: A young, growing African consumer market that is more health-conscious, favoring nutritious and healthy foods.

- Egypt is among the 44 countries that signed the African Continental Free Trade Area (AfCFTA) Consolidated Text at the 10th Extraordinary Session of the African Union in March 2018.
- In 2017, Egypt imported goods from Africa valued at $1.8 billion, which accounts for 3% of Egypt's total imports. The country's exports to Africa amounted to $3.2 billion, or 12% of Egypt's total exports for 2017.

Egypt's flourishing agro-food market

The agriculture sector is an important contributor to the Egyptian economy as it represents roughly 11.5% of the GDP.

Food production in Egypt does not meet domestic demand and the country is dependent on imported food. Egypt has a fast-growing population leading to a constant increase in demand for food, accompanied by limited local production due to restricted water supply and arable land.
